

Photography Policy

Authority: Library Advisory Board

Update history: Approved Library Advisory Board July 19 2018

Visitors and library customers may take photographs in the library and on library premises' as remembrances of their visit.

Library staff may terminate any photos being taken that appear to interfere with library business or that compromise safety and security.

The privacy of library users should not be violated.

The library reserves the right to photograph and videotape program participants. These photos and videos may be used in library publications, including local public cable, the library website or on social media. It is the responsibility of those not wishing to be photographed to notify library staff of their wishes.

Anyone interested in filming or taking photos for non-individual use must contact the library director for permission.
